Tips to Improving Low Self Esteem Simple techniques that may help you feel better about yourself.

Start Saying "No"

People with low self-esteem often feel they have to say yes to other people, even when they do not really want to.

The risk is that you become overburdened, resentful, angry and depressed.

For the most part, saying no does not upset relationships. It can be helpful to keep saying no, but in different ways, until they get the message.

Psychological First Aid Training

Public Health England (PHE) has launched a new online Psychological First Aid (PFA) training course on how to provide practical and emotional support to children and young people affected by coronavirus, or other emergencies or crisis situations. It is free of charge and available for all frontline workers and anyone who is in regular contact with children and young people up to the age of 25.

The course will help to better identify children that are in distress and provide support to help them feel safe, connected and able to take steps to help themselves.

It takes approximately three hours to complete (split into three sessions that can be completed at your own pace).
